

PROSPECTUS

For publishing in the town of Clinton, Mi. a weekly newspaper, to be entitled

SOUTHERN MARKSMAN.

FEELING a deep interest in the welfare and future prosperity of our town, and believing that the establishment of a weekly Newspaper would add to its importance abroad, and to the interest and convenience of our citizens; induced by these and other weighty considerations, backed by the solicitations of our friends, both personal and political, we have determined to make the effort. Having full confidence in the liberality of a generous public in sustaining and supporting every effort of a liberal, useful, and laudable tendency in the community, we enter into the undertaking with a confident hope of success.

We will commence our career on the great ocean of politics with no promises of occupying a neutral position—our principles are purely democratic, and we will give a firm and fearless support to the measures of the present Administration of the General Government, believing them to be in the highest degree conducive to the future welfare and permanent interests of the South, and in accordance with the true meaning and spirit of the Constitution.

Being a strict constructionist of the Constitution we shall oppose the establishment of a National Bank as an unauthorized and dangerous grant of power such as was never contemplated by its framers. We shall also oppose a National Bank, believing it totally inexpedient and dangerous in the highest degree to the liberties of the people.

We shall ever be found opposed to the misuse or the assumption of power, whether in the Federal Executive head, legislative body, or judiciary of the country.

It will be our purpose to laud virtue though clad in the habiliments of poverty, and denounce vice whether in high or low places. In doing this, we shall speak of men and measures as we find them, and with firm grasp attempt to tear the veil under which political deformity has sought shelter in these evil days of political apostasy.

In the discharge of our duty as the conductor of a political press, we shall scrupulously avoid wounding individual and private feelings. "Our banner is now to be battle and the breeze." We have planted our feet upon the ramparts of the Constitution, and call upon the people to come to the rescue. The constitutional banner waves over us in this contest for free principles, and if we fall let its sacred folds be wrapped around us.

C. P. McDANIEL, Editor.

Clinton, Sept. 19, 1838.

The Southern Marksmen will be published weekly, at five dollars, in advance, or six dollars at the end of the year. Advertisements will be inserted at the usual rates. No subscription can be received for less than six months, nor will any discontinuance be made until all dues are paid.

PROSPECTUS OF A MONTHLY MAGAZINE, To be entitled, the SOUTHERN LITERARY JOURNAL, Published in Charleston, S. C.

WHILE numerous literary periodicals are issued from the American Press, which are liberally patronized, it has been a subject of general regret, that since the discontinuance of that able work, the Southern Review, there has been no Magazine established in South Carolina, affording a suitable medium through which the opinions of our best writers might be brought to bear directly and usefully upon the public mind. It is with a view to meet this demand, that the publication of this work is proposed—and that the patronage of the citizens of the South is respectfully solicited.

The proposed Magazine will consist of original communications on Literary and Scientific subjects, of notices of recent publications, particularly in the department of light and fugitive Literature, of popular tales suggested by historical and local associations, of Poetry and political Intelligence. Its columns are intended to afford a vehicle for the free, but temperate discussion of all questions, which, from their importance, interest, or attraction, are deserving of the attention of an educated community. If it shall become what its name imports, a Journal of strict Southern Literature—if it shall serve to place upon record a true account of the opinions, feelings, habits and general tone of thinking of an enthusiastic and high minded people—if, under the enlivening inspiration of the Genius Loci, and with the approving smiles of the generous and the Fair, and the concurrent and effective aid of the learned and talented men among us, if it shall contribute, in any small degree, to secure for the South that elevated literary position to which it is entitled, and which it is capable of maintaining, its design will then be fully accomplished.

The work will be conducted by the subscriber, and assisted by several literary gentlemen, who have pledged themselves to contribute constantly and liberally to our columns, who are interested in its success, and who think the present a favorable juncture for the commencement of such an enterprise. It will be printed in an octavo form, on fine paper, in monthly numbers of 56 pages each, and will be put to press as soon as a sufficient number of subscribers can be obtained to authorize its publication. The "Journal" will be furnished to subscribers at five dollars per annum, payable at the expiration of six months from the date of the first number.

DANIEL K. WHITAKER.

PROSPECTUS OF THE NEW YORKER. (New Volume.)

THE sixth semi-annual volume of The New Yorker, quarto edition, will commence on Saturday the 22d of September next. The publishers propose to issue it on entire new and beautiful type, and to make all other improvements which experience may suggest or the wishes of its patrons may designate.

It is not now contemplated, however, that any radical change in the character or conduct of the work will be found desirable. It will still be printed on a large imperial sheet of fine paper, in a double quarto form, making sixteen large and closely printed pages per week of reading matter exclusively, or two volumes per annum of 416 large Quarto pages each. Eight pages of each number (there being three wide columns on a page) will be devoted exclusively to original and selected literary matter—tales, poems, reviews, biographical, humorous and descriptive sketches; anecdotes, miscellanies, &c. In the department of original literature, the New Yorker is regularly favored with contributions of some from the eminent writers of this country, as is well known to all the readers of the work, though it is not deemed advisable to parade their names before the public in an advertisement. But a larger space is usually devoted to selections from the distinguished reviews, magazines and other periodicals of the day, American and foreign, with occasional extracts from new books of great merit and interest. It will be the aim of the editors to present in this, as in other departments, a faithful abstract of all that is passing, so as to afford a correct general idea of the literature of the day.

Beside these, another page will generally be devoted to brief critical notices, announcements of works in press, and other literary items. A tenth will be devoted to popular music; and the six remaining to the political, foreign and general news of the day. Under the political head, questions of high political interest will at all times be temperately discussed; but the general purpose of this department will be the careful presentation of all events and incidents of political moment occurring from time to time in the several states, or at the seat of government. All conventions, nominations, &c. of importance, will be duly noted, and full returns of all elections occurring throughout the Union will be regularly compiled for present information and future reference. The general intelligence will likewise be prepared with an eye rather to correctness and utility than the gratification of a voracious and indiscriminate appetite for the novel and the marvellous. In fine, it will be the aim of the editors to present a useful public journal, which may be perused with profit and satisfaction by persons of all pure taste and all intelligent classes. The generous patronage heretofore extended to it affords an evidence that their labors have not been in vain.

TERMS.—The quarto New Yorker is published every Saturday evening, in the style and manner above stated, at Four Dollars per annum, or Three and a half when payment is made in advance. Five dollars remitted free of postage will pay for a year and a half, or three semi-annual volumes. Ten dollars will pay for three years, or three subscribers for one year. Fifteen dollars remitted free of charge will pay for five copies one year. Subscriptions are respectfully solicited.

Address H. GREELY & CO.

127 Nassau street.

Subscribers who forward the money for the new volume before its commencement, will be supplied with the other edition of the paper, up to the time of such commencement, without charge.

The New Yorker, Folio, or common newspaper form, is printed at the same office on Saturday morning, and made up of the greater part of the same matter with the above (excluding Music.) It is afforded at Three dollars per annum or Two and a half in advance. Ten dollars, post paid, will be received in full for five copies one year. Orders promptly attended to.

New York, Aug. 11 1838.

PROPOSALS For publishing in the Town of Grenada Yalabousha Co., a paper to be called THE STATE RIGHTS ADVOCATE AND SENTINEL.

Devoted to Science, Literature & Politics.

IN its political character, the Advocate shall adhere rigidly to the Republican doctrines of the Jeffersonian school. Its object shall ever be the dissemination of political truth, unshackled by party prejudices, uninfluenced by mere names, and unwavering by power; but ever firm in the support of principle, ever remembering that the great object of all good governments is the greatest happiness of the greatest number. Supporting men only so far as they are instruments in advancing the measures of the old Democracy. Opposing the re-establishment of a National Bank, either with or without a modification of the old charter, or even with the substitution of a Gallatin for a Biddle—as unconstitutional, inexpedient, and destructive alike of both morals and liberty. And will sustain the present Executive in his adherence to a divorce of Bank and Government, as in all other measures calculated to relieve the South from her pecuniary vassalage to Northern capitalists. It will ever be found on the side of the Democracy, and will countenance only with the smile of derision, the pretensions of either a Clay, or a Harrison, or a Webster; and will support no man for any State office who is not unequivocally opposed to the political views of the above named persons. Van Buren and Independent Treasury, against any Federal Whig. It will also be a strenuous advocate for both the rights and resources of the State of Mississippi, endeavoring satisfactorily to prove that her pecuniary and political greatness depend on most entirely upon the productivity of her soil, and integrity of her citizens.

To hold a mirror up to Northern politicians and show them that the hour of retribution is fast hastening; that we as a State are no longer willing "to crawl about and pass between their legs." That as steam power has revolutionized all navigation; so cotton is henceforth, to become the unregulated regulator of exchanges—and that they will have to admit a competition in one whom but yesterday they looked upon with the smile of contempt, because she tamely submitted to be pillaged and wronged. That the North have been the bankers and factors of the South long enough with nothing but their Bank credit and our produce for capital. That the spirit of true greatness is in Mississippi, its means are within its grasp; and it is as vain as weak to attempt a denial of results, that each day is rendering more plain, more important and more irresistible. That Mississippi can only be robbed of her rights, by being first deprived of intelligence, whereby she will lose the consciousness of being possessed of any.

My whole time except during the session of the courts of Yalabousha and those of Jackson, shall be zealously devoted to the attempt of rendering the Advocate worthy of its name, and a vindicator of the unparalleled claims of Mississippi to greatness, by means of which she will triumphantly extricate herself from present embarrassment and move onward to a rank among her sister States far beyond the calculations of careless or prejudiced spectators. In conclusion, we would say, that to our mind, there is but one source whence danger to this great and free Nation, containing as one undivided whole, is seriously to be apprehended—and interference, with to us, the delicate and sensitive question of right of property. That Mississippi together with the whole South will stand by the Constitutional institutions of the country; but that the slightest intermeddling with their domestic relations, will cause them to entrench themselves behind the bulwark of their reserved rights.

Prospectus, FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX.

These works have been published by us for six years. There are now more subscribers for them, probably, than for any other paper published in the United States; certainly more than there are for any other paper published in this District. This large and increasing subscription is conclusive evidence of their usefulness. They are invaluable to all who feel an interest in the proceedings of Congress.

No other publication gives them so full, nor half so cheap. It is, indeed, the cheapest publication in the United States—perhaps in the world. Our position at the seat of Government enables us to print them at so low a rate. We are compelled to publish the proceedings of Congress in detail, for our daily paper. This done it requires, comparatively, but a small additional expense to change them to the forms of the Congressional Globe and Appendix. If it were not for these circumstances, we could not publish them for four times the sum charged.

The Congressional Globe is made up of the daily proceedings of the two houses of Congress, and the speeches of the members, condensed. The year and days on all important subjects are given. It is published weekly, with small type, on sixteen royal quarto pages.

The Appendix contains the speeches of the members, at full length, written out by themselves, and is printed in the same form as the Congressional Globe. It is published as fast as the speeches can be prepared. Usually there are more numbers printed for a session than there are weeks in it.

Each of these works is complete in itself. But it is desirable for every subscriber to have both; because, if there should be any ambiguity in the synopsis of a speech in the Congressional Globe, or any denial of its correctness, it may be removed at once, by referring to the speech in the Appendix.

Indexes to both are sent to subscribers, as soon as they can be prepared after the adjournment of Congress.

TERMS.
For one copy of the Cong. Globe - $1
For one copy of the Appendix - - $1
Six copies of either of the above works will be sent for $5, twelve copies for $10, and a proportionate number of copies for a larger sum.

Payments may be transmitted by mail, postage paid, at our risk. The note of any incorporated bank in the United States, current in the section of country where a subscriber resides, will be received. But when subscribers can procure the notes of banks in the Northern and Middle States, they will please send them.

To insure all the numbers, the subscriptions should be here by the 11th of December next.

The Democratic papers with which we exchange, will please give this prospectus a few insertions.

No attention will be paid to any order unless the money accompany it, or unless some responsible person, known to us to be so, shall agree to pay it before the session expires.

BLAIR & RIVES.
Washington City, Oct. 24, 1838.

The Cumberland Farmer.

J. A. BROWNING & Co. propose publishing in GALETIN, Tennessee, a monthly periodical, bearing the above title. To be devoted to Agriculture, Horticulture, Domestic Economy and the interests of practical Husbandry in all its various departments. The great improvements which have been made in the last few years, have been the result of unceasing experiments in physical science and the diffusion of light amongst the agricultural community; still to advance those improvements and increase the light already thrown on this important subject, shall be our fixed purpose, believing as we do that the advancement of agriculture is the only means of producing substantial prosperity, in every department of trade as well as of increasing our national wealth. We do not expect to benefit the public so much by our own thoughts as by the experiments and observations of others, and especially those made by Agricultural Societies.

It is well known that such an undertaking cannot succeed unless the agricultural community takes an interest in it; therefore, of the Sumner County Agricultural Society, and of the Societies of Middle Tennessee generally it asks patronage and especially the liberty of publishing their experiments.

CONDITIONS.

The Cumberland Farmer will be published monthly, in quarto form, on good paper, with fair type, at one dollar per year, in advance, or on the receipt of the first number. Post-Masters, Members of Agricultural Societies, and all who feel an interest in the prosperity of this effort to diffuse light on this subject, are requested to act as our agents.

Persons living at a distance may pay to post masters, who will remit to us, at our risk, they taking a receipt. Any person sending us $10, with ten subscribers, will receive a paper gratis, for one year.

Editors will please publish the above, and aid us in this undertaking. It is not our interest that prompts us to make this effort; but by the solicitations of our friends we have consented to make the trial. We hope to succeed—but our hopes will be in vain unless we are aided by those for whose interest it will be published.

PROSPECTUS OF THE UNITED STATES MAGAZINE.

AND DEMOCRATIC REVIEW.

IT has long been apparent to many of the reflecting members of the Democratic Party of the United States, that a periodical for the advocacy and diffusion of their political principles, similar to those in such active and influential operation in England, would be a desideratum of great importance to supply—a periodical which should unite with the attractions of a sound and vigorous literature, a political character, capable of giving efficient support to the doctrines and measures of that party, now maintained by the people of this country. Discussing the great questions of policy before the country, expounding and advocating the Democratic doctrine through the most able pens that that party can furnish, in articles of greater length, more condensed force, more elaborate research and more elevated tone, than is possible for the newspaper press, a Magazine of this character becomes an instrument of inappreciable value for the enlightenment and formation of public opinion, and for the support of the principles which it advocates. By these means, by thus explaining and defending the measures of the great Democratic party; and by always furnishing to the public a clear and powerful comment upon those complex questions of policy and party which so frequently distract the country; and upon which imperfectly understood as they exert a beneficial, rational and lasting influence on the public mind.

Other considerations, which cannot too highly be appreciated, will render the establishment and success of the proposed Magazine of very great importance. In the mighty struggle of antagonist Party of the United States stands committed to the world as the depository of political faith with which the cause of the People in every age and country is identified. Chiefly from the want of convenient means of concentrating the intellectual energies of its disciples, this party has hitherto been almost wholly unrepresented in the republic of letters, while the views and policy of its opposing creeds are daily advocated, by the ablest and most commanding efforts of genius and learning.

In the United States Magazine, the attempt will be made to remove this reproach.

Co-ordinate with this main design of the United States Magazine, no care or cost will be spared to render it, in a literary point of view, honorable to the country, and fit to cope in vigor and rivalry with its European competitors.—Viewing the English language as the noble heritage and common birthright of all who speak the tongue of Milton and Shakespeare, it will be the uniform object of its conductors to present only the finest productions in the various branches of literature, that can be procured; and to diffuse the benefit of correct models of taste and worthy execution.

In this department the exclusiveness of Party, which is inseparable from the political department of such a work, will have no place. Here we will stand on a neutral ground of equality and reciprocity, where those universal principles of taste to which we are all alike subject, will alone be recognised as the common law. Our political principles cannot be compromised, but our common literature it will be our common property to extend, with a liberal and unbibulous partiality or partiality. As the United States Magazine deduced on the broad basis with the and influence on the Democratic Party of the United States can present it, in respect a thorough National Work, merely designed for ephemeral interest and attraction, but to continue of permanent historical value. With this considerable portion of each number will be appropriated to the following subjects, in addition to the general referred to above.

A general summary of the year's domestic intelligence, digested in the form of the States, comprising all the important facts of the preceding year. General Literary Intelligence, including Agricultural improvements, all new Patents, &c. A condensed account of all new of improvement throughout the Union. Military and Naval News, Changes, Movements, &c. Foreign Intelligence. Biographical obituary notices of distinguished persons.

After the close of each session, will be published, containing a general review and history of its proceedings, and abstract of its important elements, and the acts of the session.

RENOVATING ON AN IMPROVED PLAN

W. L. AYER

RENOVATOR

REPRESENTS the Clinton and its vicinity, and is prepared to execute all orders of his above line that may be entrusted to him, in a style superior to any other in the State, and but little below the best of the Italians, in restoring damaged Silks and Cloths, when they have been soiled by grease, or otherwise. Gentlemen who have had their garments injured in any way, may rest assured that they may have them made "as good as new." The fabrics of the Coat will not be injured as generally done by Dyers and Scourers, but shall set and fit as well to the person as when first made.

Hats of every description, new and restored to their original color, made to look equal to new.

N. B. All orders left at my shop will be punctually attended to.

Three doors west of J. R. & Co. store.

Clinton, December 11, 1838.
